

Procedures for Release of Students From Educational Programs

The following procedures are developed to help us conform to the legal requirements of Oregon Administrative Rules and to provide a method for release of students from certain classes because of religious or cultural belief or disabilities.

Religious or Cultural Belief

1. If a class or portion of a class is claimed to be in violation of religious or cultural beliefs, the student's parents (or the student if 18 years or older) may request release from that class or portion of the class claimed to be in violation.
2. Request will be made on district form #141, Request for Release from Educational Program. Reasons for the request will be listed on the form indicating class or portion of the class violating the student's religious or cultural belief.
3. Request for release will be presented to the principal who will make the decision regarding the class and its relation to the beliefs of the student.
4. The principal will either approve or deny the request and notify the superintendent of the decision.
5. Parents (or student if 18 years or older) may request a review by the superintendent if they are not in agreement with the principal's decision.

Disability

If a class or portion of a class is such that a student with a disability is unable to participate, the student's parents (or the student if 18 years or older) may request release from that class or portion of the class.

Request will be made on district form #141, Request for Release from Educational Program. Report from a medical doctor should accompany the request.

Request for release will be presented to the principal who will make the decision regarding the class and its relation to the student's physical abilities.

The principal will either approve or disapprove the request and notify the superintendent of the decision.

Parents (or student if 18 years or older) may request review by the superintendent if they are not in agreement with the principal's decision.
