Special Interest Materials

Supplementary instructional materials adopted and used by staff must reflect the educational philosophy of the ESD. The ESD is committed to the use of supplementary educational materials that will serve the needs of all students receiving ESD services.

Supplementary educational materials that may be available through emerging technology may be used to implement, facilitate and improve the district's instructional program. In general, supplementary educational materials from non-ESD sources should have the approval of the superintendent or designee before being used in ESD instructional settings. This approval may be given to materials that are of obvious educational quality or which supplement and enrich text and reference book materials for defined ESD courses and are timely.

All copyright laws regulating the use of supplementary instructional materials will be strictly followed.
