Promotion and Retention of Students**

If a student's work is of such a nature that it is evident he/she can do the work of the next grade, his/her card shall be marked "promoted." If it is evident that he/she cannot do the work of the next grade and there are no other factors to influence, his/her card shall be marked "retained." If there is a question of the student's ability to do the work of the next grade, the term "conditional promotion" may be used. If, due to age and other factors, it seems advisable for the student to show school advancement, the term "assigned" shall be used.

In all cases all terms except "promoted" are to be explained completely to the parents at least nine weeks before the close of the school year. In the case of "conditional promotion," the student shall be judged by his/her achievement in the new grade and the opinion of the teacher and this shall be used to determine whether the student is retained or returned to the grade from which he/she was conditioned. This judgment shall be made on or before the end of the first report period, and the change shall first be discussed with the principal.
