Student Publications

Students' First Amendment rights to freedom of expression and equal protection of the law will be observed in regard to student publications, whether school-sponsored or nonschool-sponsored. The observance of these rights must be balanced against the duty of educating students in an orderly manner to protect the rights of all.

Some student publications, such as annual yearbooks or other sanctioned publications may be educational devices developed as part of the curriculum to benefit primarily those who compile, edit, and publish them. Staff advisors will be assigned to guide students engaged in these activities. Any commercial advertisements in such publications will conform to Board regulations.

Students may be required to submit publications for approval prior to distribution. When approval is required, school administrators must make available to students the standards which will be used in determining the grant or denial of permission. Such publications will cause substantial disruption of, or material interference with, school activities or intrusions into school affairs or the lives of others.

Prior restraints will contain precise criteria spelling out what is forbidden. A definite brief time limit will be set within school officials must approve or disapprove distribution. To be valid these guidelines must prescribe a procedure for appeals from students. Student journalism is addressed in Board policy IB – Freedom of Expression.

It will be the responsibility of the local school administrators to promulgate reasonable and specific regulations setting forth the time, manner, and place in which distribution of student publications may occur. Students who become subject to discipline for failure to comply with distribution rules will be granted procedural due process rights.
