School Involvement with Noncustodial Parents

The Board is committed to positive relationships with noncustodial parents as appropriate and where not restricted by court order.

Specifically, if no court order restraining either parent from involvement with the child is present, school personnel are not to deprive the noncustodial parent the right to:

1. Receive any and all records, grade cards, or other school communications;
2. Consult with school staff;
3. Attend school activities involving the child;
4. Authorize all manner of emergency health care if the custodial parent is unavailable; and
5. Make such other contacts with the school or directly with the child as are accorded other parents during the school day.

The district is to presume that the enrolling parent has the obligation to provide a court order curtailing the rights of the noncustodial parent if such an order exists. In all circumstances, the district is bound to honor the most recent court order that it possesses.
