

Architects

The architects shall advise the administration and Board of the phases of the program for which they have technical training and experience.

The architects perform other functions as follows:

1. They shall translate the educational program for which the facilities are needed into building design and specifications;
2. They shall advise the Board on letting of contracts;
3. They shall supervise or direct the supervision of construction;
4. They shall recommend approval and acceptance of completed facilities;
5. They shall supplement their services, when necessary, by consulting specialists such as landscape architects, heating, ventilating, electrical, structural and acoustical engineers.