District and School Community Support Groups

The district acknowledges and appreciates the desire of district and school-related support groups to enhance programs and activities by making financial and in-kind contributions. Such groups include, but are not limited to, the Redmond 2J Education Foundation, parent-teacher associations, parent-teacher clubs, booster clubs, community associations and support groups for a particular sport or activity. Generally, the purposes for such contributions are identified by the officers of the support group in consultation with the superintendent, principal and/or sport or activity advisor.

The Redmond 2J Education Foundation and other district and school-related support groups are not legal components of the district. Each group must have its own tax identification number, own bank account and be directly responsible for compliance with Internal Revenue Service and state reporting and disclosure requirements. School-related support group fund raising efforts must be approved by the building principal in advance.
