

At-Risk Student Program

The overall objective in addressing the educational deficiencies of at-risk students is to provide a positive environment conducive to the promotion of academic success whereby these students are no longer "at-risk" of failure to achieve or of dropping out of school. Partnerships between parents, local businesses, service agencies and the schools provide opportunities to mobilize the community and solidify efforts to eliminate the causes of student alienation from the home, school and the community.

Any student who runs the risk of not acquiring the knowledge, skills and attitudes needed to become a productive adult is at risk. Students who have difficulty achieving in school are at risk. Therefore, the term "student at-risk" refers to any student who has been adversely affected by one or more of the factors associated with poor health, economic status, family conditions, linguistic mismatch, social maladjustment and community change/upheaval. It is the inability to cope with these adversities (whether they be short- or long-term) that negatively affects school performance and attendance. Indicators of risk may include: underdeveloped language skills, drug and alcohol abuse, disruptive and/or delinquent behavior, inattentiveness, chronically withdrawn behavior, excessive school absence, dropping out of school and low academic achievement.
