Special Interest Materials

In general, supplementary printed materials from non-ESD sources should have the approval of the Superintendent or designee before being used in ESD classrooms. This approval may be given to materials that are of obvious educational quality, supplement, and enrich text and reference book materials for definite ESD courses, and are timely.

Printed materials from non-ESD sources should not be displayed or distributed in ESD classrooms or on ESD grounds without approval of the Superintendent or designee. Students may not be used as agents for distributing non-ESD-related materials to the homes without the Superintendent's approval.

Teachers may use special aids such as models, films, slides, pictures, charts, and exhibits for educational purposes with the express approval of the Superintendent or designee, even though these materials may bear the name of a commercial business firm that provided the aid.

Educational films and all video rentals secured from or through commercial sources will be approved by the Superintendent or designee prior to their use in ESD classrooms.

All copyright laws regulating the use of such material will be strictly followed.
